

Product Safety Standards

Your task is to conduct some research on product safety and Product Safety Standards by using the website

<http://www.consumeraffairs.govt.nz/productsafety/index.html>

and present your research information to the class in an interesting way.

From the website investigate:

- how you report an unsafe product
- what products have a Product Safety Standard and why they have that Standard.

Certification marks on products are a message to the consumer that the product has been through a safety programme.

- Visit one or more local stores selling a range of goods that you think will have safety certification marks. Explain to the shop manager or sales assistant that you are doing some research on safety standards and certification and would like to look at a range of goods to see if they have safety certification.
- Make a list of products that have safety certification marks.
- Make a list of any products that surprised you because they didn't have safety certification marks.
